Nothing has transpired to day to materially after the condition of the market, and husiness raied throughout as sepleted in our last. The Banks discounted to the extent of their income without being able to meet more than a fraction of the aggregate demand, and the outdoor movement was restricted to a key unimportant operations in first and second-class Paper. Exchange was very firmly held throughout, and the empty indicated no important increase in either foreign or flomestic. The demand for all classes of Bild continued mahated, and owing to the limited sharecter of offerings some of the Banks still paid specie quite freely rather than risk the contingency of a future supply. Rates are non-mally unchanged, and we reveal as follows:
